

I am opposed to changing the rules to allow cellular telephone use aboard airborne aircraft. In this enclosed space it would be an imposition on those paying passengers wishing quiet. There is nowhere else for these people to go. It is unnecessary to allow this kind of communication. Perhaps email and text messaging could be allowed as these are not disturbing to other paying passengers.